

THE CALIFORNIA CITIZENS REDISTRICTING COMMISSION

Learn How You Can Apply to Serve on the Commission and Ensure the Commission Reflects the Diversity of Our State

In 2008, California voters passed Proposition 11, creating California's first-ever citizens redistricting commission. The 14-member commission is responsible for drawing the state Senate, Assembly and Board of Equalization districts. The legislative lines drawn by the commission will determine political representation in California for the next decade.

Online applications are due on February 12, 2010. Please join us to discuss the role of the California Citizens Redistricting Commission and how to apply to serve on it. Learn more at WeDrawTheLines.ca.gov or RedistrictingCA.org.
