Am surprised to hear that at last night's meeting in SLO, comments were made indicating a great similarity between Santa Cruz, Monterey, SLO counties. Having lived in both Carmel & Santa Cruz, I would suggest that our interests are actually quite different. It is easy to assume that because both are college towns, that they have a lot in common, or that because both share interests in agriculture that they agree on a majority of fronts. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Frankly, I don't feel that my business interests are represented in any way that recognizes the uniqueness of the Monterey Bay central coast area. I would hope that more, widespread input is gathered before your decision is cemented

Respectfully,
