Message Body:

Historically the Coast has been viewed as one entity by Republicans and Democrats alike for good reason. We are diverse and geographically isolated, but generally dependent on Resource Extraction and Tourism in one form or another. Despite restrictions on these, most of us depend on fishing, logging, farming, wine, dairy, poultry and visitor serving facilities for a living. The Coast is dotted with a matrix of environmental protections that we are accustomed to and would make little sense to others and our media are all oriented North and South along the HWY 1/101 corridors. We are unified by geography and culture; don't divide what nature and time have joined.
