

PUBLIC COMMENT

Dear Commissioners,

Congratulations on your hiring of truly excellent staff. You will be particularly well served by having continuity from the State Auditor's office as you make your transition to a standalone Commission. This is a prime example of the sort of leverage needed to best accomplish your important public mission.

Another way to leverage your resources would be to seek large scale partnerships with networks of potential meeting locations to minimize the cost and time committed to event planning. Commissioner Yao did a wonderful job in organizing your February meeting while you were simultaneously hiring staff. However, moving forward, having Commissioners devote significant personal time to locating and negotiating the details of future meetings would not be an efficient use of your most valuable resource.

Fortunately, California has an extensive network of public colleges and universities throughout the state that might be tapped for wholesale meeting planning. These sites are uniquely well suited to your mission as they are well equipped and are free of the conflicts that some private sites may have. Additionally, student volunteers could help keep staffing costs at a minimum.

The University of California has 10 campuses, including the newest state of the art facility in Merced. The California State University has 23 campuses and there are 112 California Community Colleges. I enclose campus maps to illustrate the geographic distribution of these sites and below you will find contact information for system wide leadership.

I suggest that when you create your meeting requirements template, you have your staff meet with the Chancellors and President to discuss a formal (or informal) RFP to be circulated by them to their local leadership to identify campuses interested in hosting meetings. Once interested campuses identify themselves, staff could bring the list to the full Commission for consideration and direction. Staff could then arrange a conference call with all of the interested hosts in the locations selected by the Commission to streamline meeting planning and maximize consistency in format.

On another topic, I've been concerned to see significant gaps in between your meetings and inconsistent attendance. I understand that it is a great personal sacrifice to serve on the Commission with such an intense time commitment required in such a compressed period of time and I am grateful for your sacrifice. However, your own website states "carrying out the duties of the Commission should be first and foremost for each commissioner during the 7 ½ month period in which the Commission must define the state Senate, Assembly and Board of Equalization district lines." Please do not underestimate the magnitude of the task before you and the time commitment needed to accomplish your mission.

Sincerely,

Heather Peters
