Your criteria as listed: "Districts must respect the boundaries of cities, counties, neighborhoods and communities of Interest, and minimize their division, to the extent possible" should be adhered to considering pairing us with Long Beach. We do not have enough in common to even be remotely considered.

Thank you for your attention.

Subject: La Habra can NOT be part of LA County Districts

Message Body:

I just read the Orange County Register story about the current map drafts indicating that La Habra will become part of state assembly and senate districts that are currently made up of all LA County communities. This is NOT acceptable. One of the reasons I live in La Habra is because it is an Orange County community, a conservative community, and a community with Republican representation. Shifting the small population of this community to LA County districts will remove our VOICE entirely - we will be too small a piece of the new district to have ANY effect on the voting, and our representatives will in no way care about our opinions. Despite the issues with population equalization, this is not an acceptable shift in the district map. If I wanted to be part of liberal LA County, I would have purchased a home in LA County. Think again, and re-draft that map!
